During more than 30 years of practice, Richard Ivans has served as lead counsel in numerous complex business, corporate, real estate and real estate finance transactions. These transactions have involved mergers and acquisitions, asset sales, formations of business entities and joint ventures, employment and non-competition agreements, shareholder agreements, corporate governance, licensing and franchise agreements, arbitration of disputes arising out of the sale of a business, real property acquisitions and development, construction law, condominium and planned unit development, formation and governance of condominium and homeowner associations, commercial leasing, and real estate and asset backed finance transactions on behalf of both lenders and borrowers. He also has substantial experience counseling businesses in situations involving financially troubled companies, advising both debtors and creditors of their alternatives in these situations. During the course of his career, Richard has represented foreign and domestic clients of all sizes, from large business entities to start-up businesses, financial institutions, and individuals conducting transactions throughout the United States.
